Murray

WMB
20 July

Mr. Murray sent the Editor of the Gentleman's magazine a copy of his Elements of Chemistry for notice in an early No. of that publication — Two Nos have since elapsed & nothing of the kind has appeared tho' Mr. Murray's Elements are noted.

Mr. Murray is of opinion therefore that the copy has been withheld from the Editor and he desires to say that it was left with Mess^rs Richard & Son Cicero's Head Grey Lion Passage

Mr. M. will certainly expect to see some account of it in the Ed. for August

for. —

20 July 1803.

Muma

July 1819

DSI

Murray

Answered

Editor

Gentleman's Magazine.

25, Parliament Street -

Westminster.

Ashbourne,

Derbyshire

29 May 1823

Gentlemen.

I sent you sometime ago a communication on the "mermaid" in reply to some anonymous animadversions against a paper of mine.

I have examined the Gent. Mag. month after month in expectation of its insertion, but in vain.

Unless you can give it an early insertion, you will transmit it to the care of P. M. Wylie Esqr 23, Fenchurch Street..

Your insertion will certainly be but just to me; & it will be unpleasant for me to introduce it into any other channel, which I must otherwise necessarily do.

I am Gentlemen Your obedt Servt

J. Murray

222. MURRAY (John) (Scientist). 2 Letters: 1819—12 lines, 1823—17 lines, about his book "Elements of Chemical Science" (published at Saffron Walden in 1815). Lord Brougham described Murray as "the best lecturer in the world". He was consulted about the Davy Safety Lamp, and wrote on silkworms, electricity, paper, consumption (pulmonary), hydrophobia, diamonds, shipwrecks, etc. etc. $14.00, £5

P. EATON 66

in that period, there are letters to him from Nelson, S. Smith, Sir R. Abercrombie, Bentuck and Hester Stanhope.

$14.00, £5

233. SHAKESPEARE — INGLEBY. Ingleby (C. M.) "Shakespeare Hermeneutics, or The Still Lion, Being an Essay towards the Restoration of Shakespeare's Text." London, 1875. 168 pp. Written on end-paper, "Mr. Earley from the author Nov., 1875." Dr. C. M. Ingleby was born in Birmingham and became a great Shakespearean author